

What kind of printer are you?

The Hard-Copy Culprit

Loves having printed versions of everything - from meeting notes to emails. When it arrives in their inbox, it's straight off to the printer too.

The Stack Builder

Believes that a tall pile of printed documents shows they mean business. The more pages they have, the more prepared they feel.

The Traditionalist

Finds it easier to think and make changes with pen in hand. Screens are alright, but believes nothing beats scribbling on a printed page.

The Quick Clicker

Hits 'Print' a little too quickly. Then watches in horror as the printer churns out 20 copies of a 200-page report. Oops!

The Phantom

Knows they print too much but they sneak in early or stay late to avoid being seen.

The Paper Saver

Prints only what's truly needed, uses double-sided and recycled paper and shares digital versions whenever they can - a sustainability superstar!
